Proposed Creative Europe project

Field(s)	Performing arts – street theatre

CONNECTING PAST AND THE FUTURE:

(RE)BUILDING THE NEW TRADITION OF STREET THEATRE

Description

Street theatre as genre is hitting the so-called glass ceiling, the barrier that prevents the sector to be as exciting and blooming as it was in last 20-30 years, when artists were exploring and pushing the boundaries of the public space as space for performing, meeting and connecting. One of possible reasons for this is the lack of education and knowledge transfer between different generations of artists. Consequently, the new generations have to learn and explore the features of the arts in public space in its many aspects again and again.

It would help the young artists to learn about the tradition and street arts as it was before their time. Therefore, we propose the project that will connect the tradition of street arts with the artistic approaches of new generations of street artists.

The idea is very simple – each partner picks a landmark street theatre production from their past (not necessarily their own past, also by some other company). The picked show should be relevant not only to the past but also to the contemporary world in such a way that young artists can (re)interpret it in an innovative, attractive and meaningful way.

We are looking for 3-4 partners, since for the start we want to build a small cooperation project for Creative Europe – Culture sub-programme. The project should last 2 years (October 2019 – September 2021) with main activities in the 2020 (creation of the pieces) and 2020-2021 (presentation of the pieces on the festivals). Financial involvement would be around 30.000 EUR per partner, out of which Europe covers 60% (for creation costs + mobility) and each partner 40% (organizational costs and fees for performing in the festivals). We, the Ana Monro Theatre & Ana Desetnica Festival from Slovenia plan to be the leading partner.
